BIOGRAPHY – ANN HORNE

Human Development Scotland is delighted to welcome Ann Horne back to Scotland to present at this Intensive Study Event. She describes herself as 'a Falkirk bairn' who, despite decades in the south, is always pleased to come back home.

After working as a teacher of English (Falkirk High), a college lecturer (Moray House) and a social worker (Hardgate and Duntocher), she progressed her social work career in a South London Child Guidance Unit (now CAMHS) and trained in tandem as a child psychotherapist at the BAP – now Independent Psychoanalytic Child and Adolescent Psychotherapy Association at the British Psychotherapy Foundation – where she headed the training for a time.

Retired from clinical work (latterly at the Portman Clinic) she has developed the Independent Psychoanalytic Approaches with Children and Adolescents book series for Routledge (6 volumes in print, one in press and another in preparation). You can't keep an English teacher down... Her selected papers On Children who Privilege the Body – reflections of an Independent psychotherapist were published in September.
