

COSCA (Counselling & Psychotherapy in Scotland)

Recognition Scheme for Organisations Standards Event Thursday 15th August 2019 2 pm - 4 pm Volunteer Scotland, Jubilee House, Forthside Way, Stirling FK8 1QZ

Registration, along with tea and coffee, will be available from 13:30

Supporting Counsellors in Training: How to offer the best support for trainees while also getting the best for your organisation?

About the Event

This year's event will focus on the role of organisations in providing volunteer placements for counsellors in training. What can a counsellor in training reasonably expect in the way of support from a counselling organisation, both while training and afterwards? What can the organisation expect in return from the counsellor in training? How much support should each expect from the training provider? Is an integrated approach involving counsellor in training, counselling organisation and training provider the best way forward or is it more productive for the training provider to take a step back and trust the organisation to provide what the counsellor in training needs?

The event will take a slightly different format than in previous years. Instead of three presentations from three Recognised Counselling Organisations COSCA have asked a Validated training provider, a student and the authors of Making the Most of Counselling and Psychotherapy Placements to help us explore this topic.

The event will offer:

- Presentations from speakers outlining their experiences of counsellors in training or of being a counsellor in training.
- An opportunity to discuss, share and learn from Recognised Organisations their experiences of supporting trainee counsellors.
- Keynote speaker Michelle Oldale, co-author of Making the Most of Counselling and Psychotherapy Placements, will be asking 'What's in it for me?' Highlighting the intersecting needs of trainees, placements and training organisations.

Please complete and return the attached booking form, along with the appropriate booking fee, no later than Thursday 25th July to secure your place at this year's exciting event.
