1st International Conference on Pluralistic Counselling and Psychotherapy

Abertay University, Dundee, Scotland
17 - 18 March 2018

It is my great pleasure to announce that the 1st International Conference on Pluralistic Counselling and Psychotherapy will be held at Abertay University, Dundee, Scotland from 17-18 March 2018. The conference is being organised by Abertay University in partnership with the Pluralistic Practice Network.

This is the first international conference which sees academics, practitioners and trainers come together to explore and discuss the range of issues associated with practice of Pluralist Counselling and Psychotherapy.

Our Keynote speaker will be Professor Mick Cooper, an internationally recognised figure in the areas of humanistic, existential, relational and pluralistic therapy. Read more on our conference webpage here

CALL FOR PAPERS

The conference theme, New Developments in Practice, Training, and Research, welcomes submissions which further the exploration of pluralism in counselling and psychotherapy.

- Practice: The use of the pluralistic framework in practice across different contexts and with different clients groups
- Training: Training principles and practices, modalities of delivery and student experience
- Research: Research exploring the pluralistic framework, including process and outcome studies, research initiatives and developments

We especially welcome proposals that are empirically based and those that involve new and emerging topics. The deadline for submissions is

26 November 2017. Read more and view submission form here
