

COSCA Ethics Event 2022

Thursday 24th February 2022
10am-12 noon on Zoom

What the future holds for counselling in Scotland post COVID-19

Covid-19 has presented an overwhelming challenge for individual counsellors, counselling organisations and clients. Many counsellors have responded unremittingly to increased and different demands and pressures that involved a very quick change to working online and also working with clients with higher levels of need than previously.

As a result, counsellors delivering counselling during the pandemic may now need increased wellbeing support from supervisors and others in their support network. They may also need to ask themselves fundamental questions about their practice as counsellors, and how counselling has or is changing as we emerge from this pandemic.

The COSCA Ethics Event 2022 will aim to look at what the future holds for counselling in Scotland post COVID-19.

The Event will aim to:

- identify the most significant changes, challenges and opportunities for counsellors, counselling organisations and counselling
- discuss the new ways of working for counsellors, counselling organisations and clients, and their ethical implications
- discuss in this new era the suitability of other online and face to face roles or occupations that some paid and volunteer counsellors have alongside their work as counsellors.

Keynote Presentations:

Confirmed keynote presenters:

Dr Mark Widdowson, Senior Lecturer in Counselling and Psychotherapy, University of Salford, Manchester.

Matthew Haggis, Counsellor, PF Counselling Service, Edinburgh

Discussion Groups

The discussion groups, facilitated by members of COSCA's Ethics Committee, will follow the keynote presentations and will discuss the above theme in more detail.

COSCA Ethics Event 2022

Thursday 24th February 2022

10am-12 noon on Zoom

What the future holds for counselling in Scotland post COVID-19

Name
Address
Organisation (if appropriate)
Email
Telephone No.
Member of COSCA?	YES <input type="checkbox"/> NO <input type="checkbox"/>

Cost:

COSCA Members £10.00

COSCA Non-Members £15.00

I will pay direct to the bank:

Bank: Clydesdale Bank PLC
Account Name: COSCA (Counselling and Psychotherapy in Scotland)
Sort code: 82 68 05
Account No. 70174110
Date paid:

Cheque enclosed:

Please Invoice (add £2 service charge).

(please tick, if invoice required)

Please note that no refunds can be made in the event of cancellation by you.

Please email your completed booking form to ashleigh@cosca.org.uk or post to COSCA, 16 Melville Terrace, Stirling, FK8 2NE.

Closing date for booking forms is Friday 18th of February 2022.