

COSCA's Further Steps in Counselling Skills Course (Volume 1)

A Course Outline

1. Introduction

COSCA's Further Steps in Counselling Skills Course (Volume 1) was launched in July 2008. The course is aimed at those who have already completed the COSCA Counselling Skills Certificate Course (or equivalent).

The overall format and layout is similar to that of the COSCA Counselling Skills Certificate. It is designed to be delivered over 30 hours, and includes 12 units of two and a half hours in length. As before, there is also a separate handbook for participants and trainers. The course is structured around a collection of different themes and is designed to provide a coherent and flowing learning experience for participants.

As in the COSCA Counselling Skills Certificate Course, the threads of Skills, Theory, Selfawareness and Ethics is embedded in all the material covered. The core of the learning comes from participants working with their own life experiences and skills application.

The course recognises that participants will have had differing experiences of the COSCA Counselling Skills Certificate Course according to the version they attended. The course has been written with this in mind, and provides sufficient information on the themes covered for everyone to participate.

In particular, the course:

- will further develop the counselling skills of participants who have completed the COSCA Counselling Skills Certificate Course (or equivalent)
- provide opportunities for participants to reconnect with their previous learning and experience
- will help participants to up-date their practice and understanding of counselling skills
- will assist participants to further deepen and develop their knowledge and use of counselling skills.

COSCA would like to encourage all participants on this course to join COSCA as Student members, if they are not already members of COSCA. Information on membership can be found on the COSCA website. www.cosca.org.uk

2. Aims of the Course

The aims of the course are:

- To establish each participant's experience of counselling skills since completing the COSCA Counselling Skills Certificate or equivalent and to encourage each participant to identify their personal aims for this course.
- To revise some of the core concepts of the different models of counselling and explore the extent to which these influence participants' lives and their use of a counselling approach.
- To explore human development and early attachment and how past experiences can influence our emotional, sexual, spiritual and social development.
- To explore the meaning and impact of trauma and conflict.
- To explore addiction/dependency.
- To explore the process of personal change and how to support this process using a counselling approach.
- To introduce some basic concepts of transpersonal psychology and psychosynthesis as models which address the past, present and future of human experience.
- To explore the use of creative therapeutic interventions as part of using a counselling approach.
- To enable participants to consolidate and apply their learning.
- To offer the opportunity for practice and feedback in relation to 'ways of being' and 'ways of doing' in the use of counselling skills.
- To raise awareness of ethical issues which may arise from using a counselling approach.
- To encourage participants to monitor the ways in which their needs and beliefs influence the process of using a counselling approach.

4. Learning Outcomes: Core Competencies

Assessment of participants will be based on their meeting of competencies (see below) and will be undertaken throughout the course as part of the teaching, so that discernment and support are part of the same process.

Each unit has been designed to enable participants to evidence two core competencies whilst they are engaged in large and small group discussions and practice groups. The two core competencies are:

Competence 1: Establish, maintain and bring to an end a supportive interaction

Performance Criteria:

- 1. to be able to negotiate and agree with the Speaker the confidentiality framework within which the interaction will occur
- 2. to be able to maintain and monitor the agreed boundaries
- 3. to be able to encourage the Speaker to feel able to speak at his/her own pace
- 4. to be able to listen and communicate listening to the Speaker
- 5. to be able to clarify the views and beliefs of the Speaker in an open and positive manner
- 6. to be able to reflect back to the Speaker the full communication experienced
- 7. to be able to acknowledge the feelings of the Speaker with appropriate empathic support
- 8. to be able to summarise to the Speaker their understanding of the Speaker's issues and relevant beliefs
- 9. to be able to maintain the focus of interaction on what the Speaker is communicating and be able to offer a personal sense of the Speaker's issues, appropriate to the context
- 10. to be able to respect the Speaker's ways of being to avoid intrusive exploration
- 11. to be able to discuss and explore the goals of the Speaker in an open manner
- 12. be able to help the Speaker to identify personal strengths and motivations to change
- 13. to be able to help the Speaker to identify inhibiting factors and resistance to change
- 14. be able to re-evaluate with the Speaker the eventual desired outcome
- 15. to be able to discuss the ending and explore connected feelings with the Speaker
- 16. to be able to evaluate the work done with the Speaker
- 17. to be able to explore future action with the Speaker
- 18. to be able to bring the interaction to an end in a clear and definite manner
- 19. to be able to explain to Observers all interventions/responses (including the use of silence).

Competence 2: Self monitoring

Performance Criteria:

- to be able to identify personal reactions and emotions arising from the work with the Speaker and demonstrate the ability to explore one's own feelings and reactions to the Speaker's issues
- 2. to be able to acknowledge tendencies to interpret and/or impose views emerging from one's own personal issues and demonstrate the ability to avoid/resist the tendency to impose such views.
